

Eloise

“There was a time in my life where I was discarded and forgotten about. It left me feeling very hopeless. But I have a whole new life now. I had 6 babies just after I arrived here on this farm. It meant a lot to me to see and understand that they did not have to endure the life that I did. They have never known a day of hardship or hopelessness. Now, truth is, that if you asked them that however they would think that when their dinner is a little late that they are suffering a hardship. But I know better. One should never lose sight of the things that bring you hope and comfort. These can be little things. A favorite food. Looking at a flower. Laying in the mud on a hot summer day. We all have a life filled with opportunities to be grateful. I’m sure taking note of all of mine.”
