“I want to tell you a story. I want you to know where I came from because then you will understand why I am deeply grateful. My two friends Harley and Harriett and I all came from a place that brought us great pain and sadness. No one was taking care of us and we watched Harriett in particular struggling to survive. Harley and I stayed with her at all times. We never gave in to despair and we never gave up. We could hardly believe that we made it out of there. But we did. But then we were going to be separated. Harriett and Harley were going to come here to the farm and I was going somewhere else. My heart instantly broke when I saw them leave without me. We promised each other we would never be separated. We fought so hard. I managed to get out of my stall just in time before the trailer was going to leave. When the humans from here saw what was happening, they knew I had to come with them. They heard me! I will forever be grateful that they listened to us. It means everything to me and to the others too. I can rest easy now knowing that we are safe and we are together.”
