“I love these messages. I think people underestimate how much we animals do appreciate things and how deeply we feel about things. I see this all the time. Sometimes people say things about me and call me stubborn. That is because they really don’t know me. And when people dismiss me, then I don’t show them the more sensitive side of myself. I’ll tell you what my favorite things in life are. First, I am grateful for all my friends. We are a real family and we all deeply care about each other. I love being outside in the sun. But I also like looking at the rain. And my favorite thing of all is to watch butterflies. I think butterflies are magical. If you watch how they surf the wind currents and then land on a flower. They are really special. When I see a butterfly, I watch them and I feel their joy and freedom. It makes me happy. When is the last time you took time to watch a butterfly with wonder?”
